The Joy of Conferring: One-on-One with Young Readers, Grades K-3 Teachers

Debbie Miller

2005 75 min Stenhouse Publishers

While reading Debbie Miller's book, Reading With Meaning, or viewing her Happy Reading DVD series, one wonders at Debbie's ability to orchestrate a buzzing classroom full of first-graders into a cooperative literacy community. The Joy of Conferring lets us focus in with Debbie and see what happens at the individual level as she conducts reading conferences with her students. In the first program, Debbie engages in a series of six conferences with students who have a broad range of needs. The second program shows in almost real time the ways Debbie is able to check in with the entire class of students. DVD extras include Debbie's explanation of whole-class charts and lessons for book selection, and a bonus conference.

Literacy Attendance,

For Grades K-3 Teachers

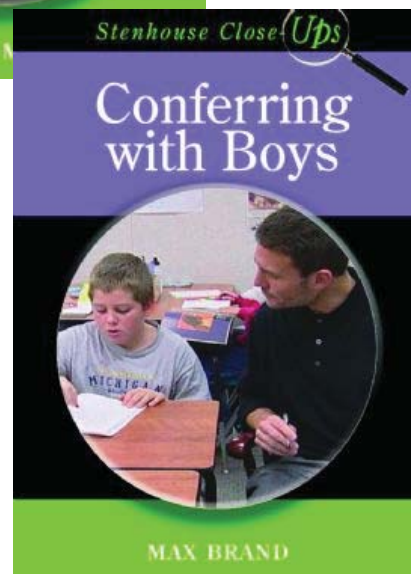

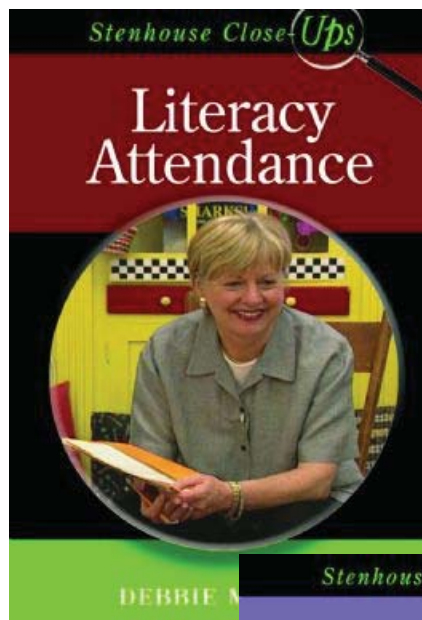

Debbie Miller

2006 13 min Stenhouse Publishers

Literacy Attendance is an alternative to the traditional attendance roll at the start of the day. Students have the option of sharing reading or writing activities from home when their name is called, and teachers gain insight into students' literacy behaviours in the home environment. The daily activity is scheduled for no more than ten minutes, and provides teachers with a wealth of insight into literacy learning beyond the classroom.

Comprehension

Read, Write, and Talk

A Practice to Enhance Comprehension,

For Grades 3-8 Teachers

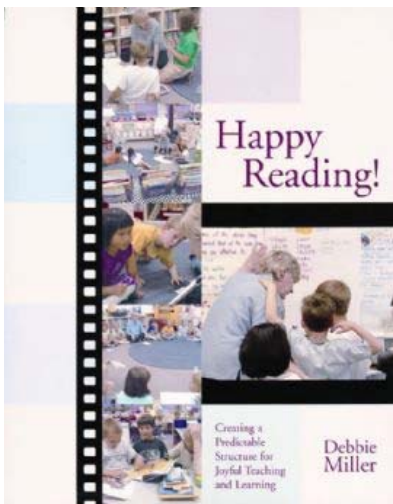

2005 30 min Stenhouse Publishers

Stephanie Harvey and Anne Goudvis

Reading is a social act. We all love to talk about what we read, whether sharing the latest novel with a friend, reacting to an outrageous editorial with a colleague, or exploring a picture book with a child. Kids are no different-when they have opportunities to think and talk about their reading, they explode with thoughts, questions, and ideas. The Read, Write, and Talk practice provides a framework for reading, merging thinking with the information, recording thoughts, and talking about what has been read.

Spotlight On Small Groups, For Grade 2-5 Teachers

Debbie Diller

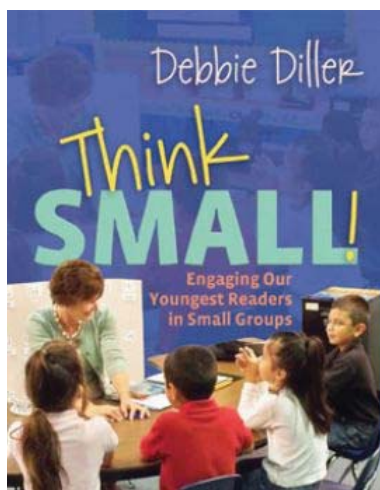

2008 58 min Stenhouse Publishers

Spotlight on Small Groups gives viewers an in-depth look at two reading groups led by master teacher and author Debbie Diller. Debbie leads the groups through a structured routine (introduction, guided practice, conferring, check-in, and more practice), demonstrating how to balance whole-group and differentiated instruction and showing how visual aids such as strategy bookmarks pique student interest. One group in the video focuses on vocabulary development, working with a nonfiction title; the other shows how to teach the strategy of inferring in fiction. The third-graders in the groups are English language learners, with their regular teacher, Lisa Gregory, observing and debriefing with Debbie after each lesson. Spotlight on Small Groups, particularly when used in conjunction with Debbie's book Making the Most of Small Groups, is ideal for professional study groups or staff development programs designed to help teachers deliver more targeted instruction.

In Think Small! master teacher and author Debbie Diller plans and teaches various small-group lessons with students at different reading levels while the rest of the class works independently at literacy work stations. Teachers learn how to form groups, organize for small-group instruction, choose books, write lesson plans, and support student independence so they can teach more effectively in small groups with young readers. Debbie works with pre-emergent readers on rhyming and oral language in small groups. She teaches two differentiated lessons with an emergent group that focuses on learning high-frequency words, both in reading and writing. Other small-group lessons include a focus on fluency and comprehension in guided reading with first-grade readers. and a dynamic, engaging whole-group reading lesson in which Debbie models a skill all students need and later takes this same skill to small group.

Small Group Interventions: Linking Word Study To Reading And Writing

Linda J. Dorn and Carla Soffos

For Grade K-6 Teachers

2009 16 min Stenhouse Publishers

The ultimate test of a student's knowledge about words is the ability to transfer this information to reading and writing. A word study intervention must include opportunities for students to apply word-solving strategies to connected texts. Organized around 11 teaching episodes—including assessing word knowledge, modeling the word-solving process, providing guided practice, and prompting students to apply strategies during reading and writing—Small Group Intervention features a small group of fourth grade students in a word study intervention that links to reading and writing. The small group format includes three components; word study lesson, reading a new book, and writing about the book. The intervention is implemented in two instructional settings. In the acquisition setting, the teacher provides explicit instruction with memorable examples that enable the students to acquire the new learning. In the consolidation setting, the students apply strategies for solving words during the reading and writing components.

Literacy work stations have taken the primary grades by storm, as teachers discover many ways to use them in supporting independent and thoughtful reading and writing. Now, Stepping Up with Literacy Stations provides teachers in third grade and up a way to tap into the energy and excitement of this innovative management and learning system. This DVD takes viewers into diverse third and fifth grade classrooms, where Debbie Diller coaches and guides children and their teachers through the process of designing and implementing stations. While many of the components and topics of the intermediate literacy stations are the same as those in the younger grades, there are some key differences. Debbie and her colleagues talk through how stations can be used to support achievement on standardized tests and provide reading and writing practice in the content areas. In addition, they explore the growing ability of older students to take on more responsibility for creating and maintaining stations.

The Daily Five Alive!

Strategies for Literacy Independence, For Grades K-2 Teachers.

Gail Boushey and Joan Moser

2007 85 min Stenhouse Publishers

It's a common dilemma: Teachers need time to work in one-on-one conferences and in small groups with students during literacy workshop. Yet assigning "busywork" to the rest of the class doesn't help students develop the essential reading and writing skills they need. Can we really expect young readers and writers to tackle challenging work on their own without constant support and intervention from teachers? This question led Gail Boushey and Joan Moser ("the Sisters") to develop The Daily Five --- a structured set of literacy tasks that research shows are linked to literacy achievement. The five tasks --read to self, read to someone, work on writing, listen to reading, and word work--are outlined in detail in Gail and Joan's book The Daily Five. In this ninety-minute video the authors demonstrate how to launch the system in primary classrooms and show the ways students evolve into independent learners.

In his groundbreaking book, Boy Writers: Reclaiming Their Voices, Ralph Fletcher took an expedition into the murky and sometimes dangerous world of boys and writing. He examined what inspires them and what shuts them down, and delved into ways teachers can do a better job of nurturing boys' wonderfully quirky contributions. Ralph's new video, "Dude, Listen to This!", explores the issue face to face as he meets with a group of boys who voluntarily give up recess time each week to meet and talk about their writing. "Dude," you may ask, "how does that happen?" "Dude, Listen to This!" thoughtfully examines the exuberance, sly humor, and surprising sensitivity of boy writers. It unearths important issues surrounding this topic and provides solid examples of the ways educators can become more adept at understanding boys and meeting their needs.

Improving Adolescent Writers

Kelly Gallagher

For Grade 7-12 Teachers

2008 28 min/2 discs Stenhouse Publishers

How can we teach today's students to write with clarity, passion, and purpose? How can we move all students — even those who struggle or are reluctant — forward in their skills as writers? In Improving Adolescent Writers, Kelly Gallagher invites you into his classroom for an in-depth look at ways to successfully answer these questions, and more. Through a variety of methods — modeling, mid-process assessment, small-group conferring, grammar and editing mini-lessons, revision techniques, and identifying the many real-world purposes for writing — Kelly demonstrates how to teach writing so that adolescents internalize the habits and skills of good writers. Along the way they learn that writing is messy, hard work but well worth the struggle and effort. They become more than better writers; ultimately, they become better thinkers. The DVD features three programs: The Importance of Modeling, Writing with Purpose, and Assessment That Drives Better Student Writing.

Unlocking the Secrets of Great Teachers What the Best Teachers Do Every Day

Featuring Rick Smith

Elementary & Secondary Editions

2005 The Video Journal of Education

In three parts filled with real classroom examples, teachers learn about who they are as teachers, what they can do proactively, and what they do in response to problems. In the first section, teachers learn to assume the best about students and to develop an inner authority when dealing with problems. Next, teachers discover how to hold their ground with their students, as well as how to form positive connections and implement successful teaching procedures. Finally, teachers learn to design engaging lessons, employ active learning strategies, and effectively use consequences.

Parent Communication

Conducting Parent-Teacher Conferences: A Partnership in Progress

2007 32 min Films for the Humanities

To run a successful parent-teacher conference, educators need a wide range of skills at their disposal and a healthy supply of confidence. This video builds both, providing solutions to the problems and frustrations that many teachers face when interacting with parents and guardians. The program explores step-by-step preparation strategies including specific knowledge and data to have at hand, the best ways to introduce topics of concern and personalized feedback, and the communication and conflict-resolution skills needed to work effectively with parents. In-depth role-playing illustrates positive and negative ways in which a conference might play out and details the most compelling methods for conveying a student's academic, social, and emotional progress. Interviews with teachers and parents reinforce essential concepts and highlight real-world challenges and rewards surrounding this vital part of education. A workbook designed especially for Professional Development workshop coordinators is also included.

Coaching

Inside Leadership: Daily 5 and CAFE Coaching and Collaboration in Schools (K-4)

Gail Boushey and Joan Moser

2010 120 min Choice Literacy

Change that endures takes time and comes from within schools, as teachers help each other master the art and science of literacy instruction. Inside Leadership highlights two important components of bringing the Daily 5 and CAFE Assessment to life in schools -- grade-level team meetings and coaching in classrooms. Gail Boushey and Joan Moser share examples of how teachers and administrators in grade-level team meetings can use CAFE as a bridge between assessment data and instruction. They also present numerous examples of one-on-one coaching in classrooms designed to help teachers with different interests and needs.

If you are a literacy coach, teacher, or reading specialist who is assisting colleagues as they implement the Daily 5 and CAFE, the Inside Leadership DVD will help you refine and reflect upon your work.

Classroom Observation

One Morning: The Daily 5 and CAFE in 1st Grade

Gail Boushey and Joan Moser and featuring Courtney Tomfohr

2010 Choice Literacy

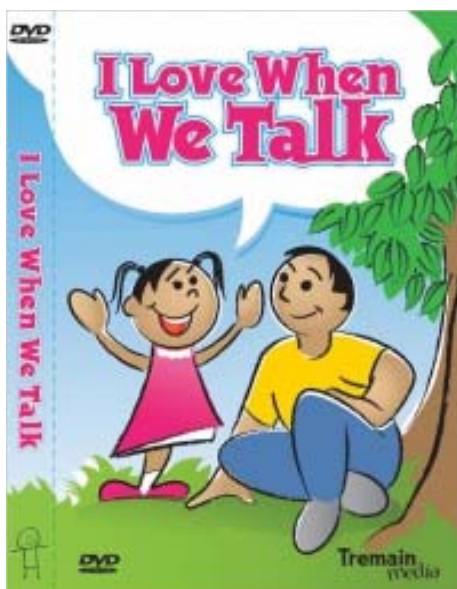

What does the entire literacy block look like in a classroom using the Daily 5 and CAFÉ Assessment programs?

How does a teacher orchestrate teaching, recordkeeping, and observation of students, balancing planned instruction with spontaneous teaching moments?

To answer these questions, Joan and Gail visited the classroom of Courtney Tomfohr, a remarkable first-grade teacher. They let the cameras run virtually uninterrupted as Courtney led three rounds of the Daily 5. Courtney uses her CAFÉ notes to move adeptly between read alouds, minilessons, small strategy groups, and individual conferences, closing her morning literacy block with writer's workshop. Joan and Gail narrate the video for viewers, providing insight into the instructional and management decisions Courtney makes within her thriving classroom of young learners.
